

PEDAL PUSHERS

Riders come through the Bordeaux-Limoges lap.

Between Digne and Marseille, riders stop for a drink and cooling off at a 13th-Century fountain.

On the rolling hillside a group moves on while official cars follow behind.

It takes more than mere determination to win the highest of all bicycling events: the Tour de France. It takes top physical condition, endurance, stamina and an inner courage to go on despite accident, agony or position.

With 100 or more entrants yearly, the event sweeps along the valleys and mountains of Europe, passing through some 800 different communities of France, Belgium, Spain, Switzerland and Italy during the approximate 3,000-mile, 25-30 day run.

Each day is a "stage" or "lap" with its individual winner, but the overall winner holds an honor considered greater than a world championship title.

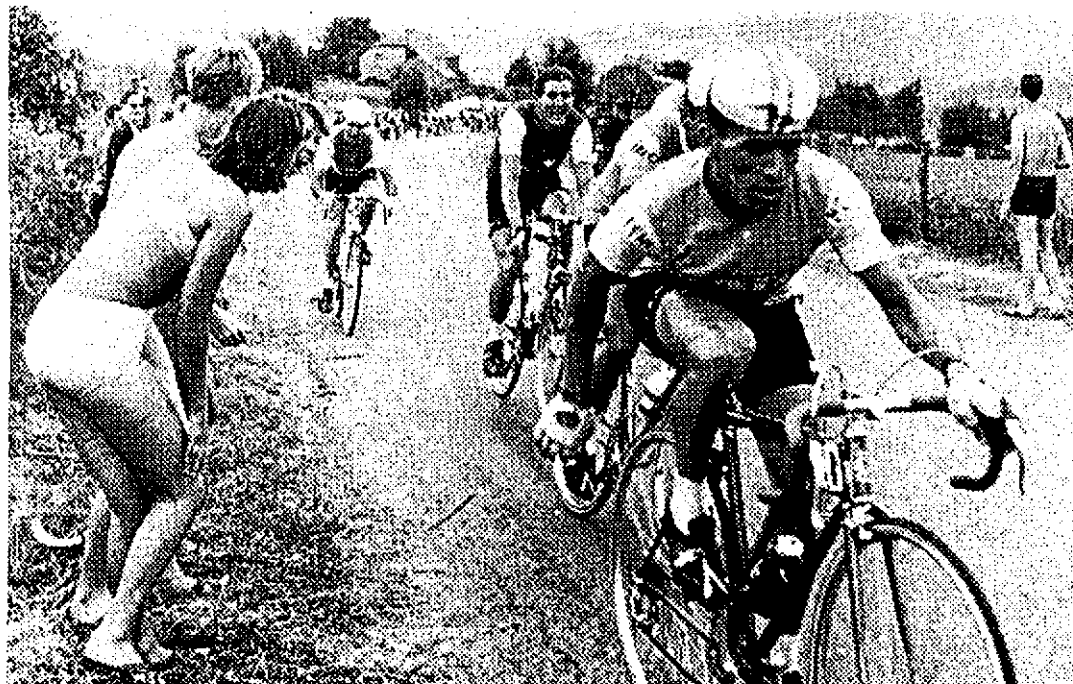

Danger is part of the strenuous, body-torturing event. The bikes, sometimes moving at speeds over twenty-five miles per hour, ride a delicate balance which can easily be upset.

On turns, as many as twenty riders might be bunched together. A loss of control by one, which did happen in 1967, can send many riders over a roadway edge and to the hospital with serious, if not fatal, injuries.

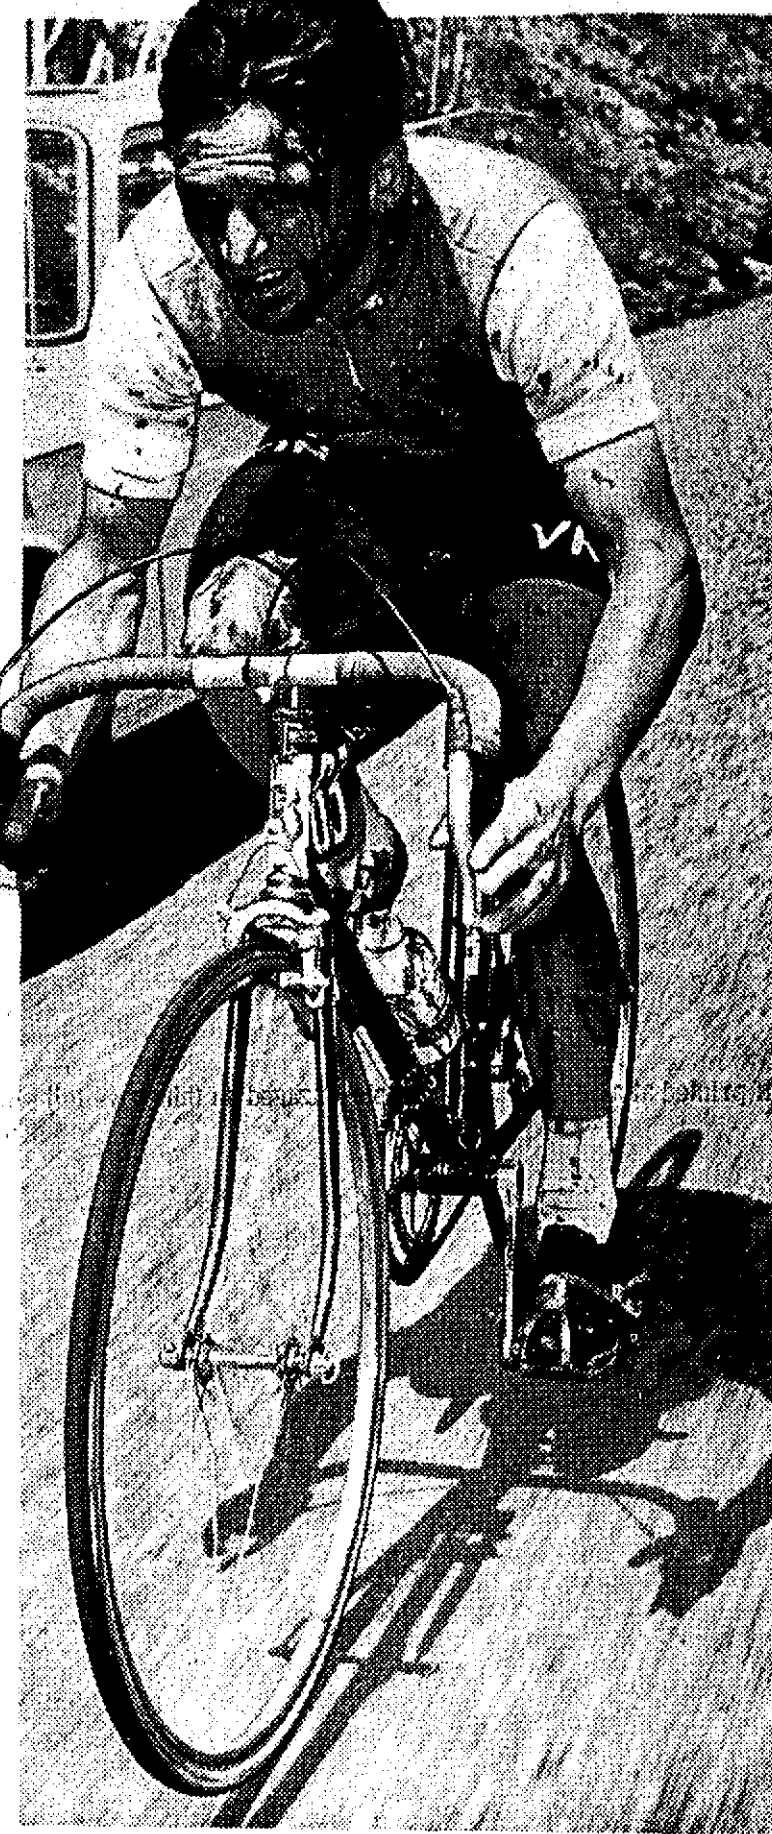

Because of the altitudes, ranging from 4,000 to 7,000 feet in the mountains, oxygen is scarce and the competitive strain can drop a cyclist in exhaustion due to oxygen deprivation.

Along the course, there are cheering fans for encouragement and opportunities to rest or cool off before returning to competition amidst a welter of trucks, vans, automobiles and motorcycles carrying equipment, supplies and officials, be they newspapermen, trainers or judges.

It is all colorful action and makes the Tour de France (these pictures from the 1967 event) a sought-after victory by bicycle-racing enthusiasts throughout the world.

The lovely scenery goes unnoticed as riders push on between Jambes and Metz.

Following a bad fall during the Briancon-Digne lap, the Netherland's Huub Harings continues.

One rider gets cooled off with a hose during a stop.

Roger Pingeon, right, 1967 winner of the Tour de France, compliments fellow countryman and rider Raymond Poulidor.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us! it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

SAME OLD QUESTION, RESEARCHED ANSWER

Dear Helen: It's no wonder so many teen-agers give up trying when all the good things they do go unnoticed, but the bad things are shouted from the front page. Newspapers glory in running stories on drugs and orgies and riots, all playing up the youth angle. But our Youth Conferences, Teen Juries, school achievements are hidden in the ads, if printed at all.

You probably won't print this as it's against your profession. But it's true. —GARY

Dear Gary: Not true! And I can prove it. So can you, if you'll take time to count inches in your local newspaper. Over an extended period you'll find the ratio of "good" to "bad" teen news runs five or six to one, in favor of the "good," and this includes favorable placement as well as space. Trouble is, no matter where it's put or how much coverage it has, a story about a Young People's Conference or school cleanup day or whatever, simply doesn't have the drawing power of a small item on teen crime. You're blaming the paper, when you should be blaming at the readers—and never forget, chum, you're one of them!

Several representative newspapers, among them the Grants Pass Daily Courier (Oregon), and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram (Texas) have made week-long surveys on this subject. Here's an excerpt from the Star-Telegram's findings:
"It is sometimes difficult to make a judgment as to whether news is 'good' or 'bad.' For instance the longest story run during our survey period, that we classified as 'bad'... concerned a demonstration at the University of Texas. Many people believe a demonstration for peace is 'good.'

"Basing our arbitrary decisions on stories about 'good' young people versus stories about 'bad' young people, the survey showed that we ran (on the 'good' side) 246 inches in the news section and 230 inches in the sports section. This totals 476 inches. In addition, we ran 17 pictures in the 'good' category, which measured approximately 165 inches. This totals 631 inches devoted to news about 'good' young people—in one week.

During the same period we ran 113 inches of news about young people engaged in things we felt the people generally would consider 'bad.' There were no pictures. In the 'bad' category, 12 stories ran in the first section of the paper, only one of them on Page 1. There were 24 stories in the 'good' category in the first section, one on Page 1.

"The survey was made because this charge is so often lodged against... newspapers." ... Start countin', Gary!—H
Dear Helen: What are you doing with your high, slim-heeled, pointy-toed shoes now that the styles have changed to box-toes and flat heels? —JODY

Dear Jody: I'm wearing 'em!—H

Dear Helen: What's a fair amount for a girl to pay her parents for room and board when she has a take-home paycheck of $65 a week and is living at home—and should she pay for her toll calls, dry cleaning, etc. extra?—S.O.S.

Dear S.O.S.: I'd say between one-sixth and one-fifth of her paycheck should go for room and board—and she should take care of her own "extra" expenses. —H.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MRS. WINSTON BYRON THOMASON

Miss Sharon Kay Fielding became the bride of Mr. Winston Byron Thomason at 8:00 p.m., July 5 in the First Baptist Church of Hope. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hunter Fielding, of Hope, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Arnold Thomason of Waldo, Arkansas.

The Reverend Gerald Trussell, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Hope officiated at the double ring ceremony before a background of greenery and lighted tapers. Huckleberry was entwined the length of the chancel and choir rails and hung from the baptistry on which was placed a branched candelabra holding burning tapers.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Dora Ann King, organist, who accompanied Mrs. William Freeman of Benton, who sang "I Love Thee" preceding the exchange of vows and "The Lord's Prayer" at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of cloud white silk organza fashioned in a demi-cage design. Three D, venise lace encircled the neckline reaching to the tiered short cap sleeves. From the three D venise lace shoulders hung a removable trace trimmed cathedral train. A high silk organza calot covered in three D lace and seed pearls held her four tiered veil of silk illusion. She wore the traditional "something old, new, borrowed, and blue with a sixpence in her shoe" and carried a colonial bouquet of white and pink.

Mrs. Michael Paul Allen, Little Rock, served her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. David Wayne Tucker, Columbia, Missouri, Miss Patricia Fugatt of North Little Rock, Miss Ann Rutherford of Greenville, Texas, cousin of the bride, was Junior bridesmaid. The attendants wore identical floor length gowns of pink crepe. The gowns were fashioned in the cage design with a deep collarlette and short sleeves of white floral venise lace. In their hair they wore mini nosegays of pink and white lace and carried pink and white nosegays.

Mr. Dan Stranathan of Dallas, Texas, served as best man. Groomsman were Messrs. Floyd Sanders of Waldo, Joe Askew of El Dorado, and Fred McBride of Dallas, Texas. Serving as ushers and candlelighters were Messrs. Michael Paul Allen of Little Rock and Jimmy Askew of Magnolia.

Mrs. Fielding chose for her daughter's wedding an imported chiffon sheath in aqua trimmed with Bordonne lace and wore matching accessories. Mrs. Thomason, mother of the bridegroom, wore a citrus green ensemble with matching accessories. Both wore corsages identical to their dresses.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Fielding were hosts at a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church, which was decorated with white stock, carnations, pompon mums against cascades of foliage.

Mrs. Royce Smith greeted the guests and introduced them to the receiving line. Presiding at the beautifully appointed table covered in white organza were Mrs. W. M. Rutherford, Greenville, Texas, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Floyd Sanders, Waldo, sister of the groom, they were assisted by Miss Mary Ann Wood, North Little Rock, Mrs. Cynthia Owen, Arkadelphia, and Mrs. Roy Allison. Also dispensing hospitality were Mrs. Winston Duke, Richardson, Texas, Mrs. Teddy Jones, Jr., Arlington, Virginia, Mrs. Joe Williamson, Mrs. Larry Chandler, Mrs. Ross Honea, Little Rock, Mrs. John Graves and Mrs. Larry Vaughn, of Hope.

In charge of the bride's book was Mrs. Bennie Downing, Hutto, Texas. Rice bags were distributed by Master Med Rutherford, Greenville, Texas, cousin of the bride, and Misses Kathy and Karen Sanders of Waldo, nieces of the groom.

As the couple departed the bride wore a belted shirt dress in spirited black and white and pinned a white orchid at her shoulder.

After the wedding trip the couple will reside in Richardson, Texas, where the bride will teach in the Richardson School System, the groom will be a student at Southern Methodist University School of Law.

NOTEBOOK

By JOAN CROSSBY

NEA Entertainment Editor
NEW YORK—(NEA)—In a beauty-conscious society, where a man with jowls and five o'clock shadow was once rejected for the presidency of the United States, a gentleman named Imero Fiorentino has tremendous power.

Fortunately Fiorentino, a lighting expert, uses his power and his voltage well and in a nonpartisan manner.

Presently he and his staff of television lighting experts are working for both Republican Nelson Rockefeller and Democrat Hubert Humphrey. He has lighted three presidents (Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson). After the first Kennedy-Nixon debate in 1960, when Nixon definitely lost in the glamor department, Fiorentino's firm was called in as lighting consultants, and they handled the lights for Nixon from the second debate through election day.

Florentino, called "Immy" by his friends, says Nixon is the hardest to light of all candidates. "He has deep-set eyes, dark brows, black hair and jowls. Rockefeller is not difficult to light and he is understanding. When we lighted Eisenhower, who was then president, he was concerned with the amount of light in his eyes. So we put a pink gel over the light. We also had to back-light him because of the fuzz on top of his head. If we used too much light, he looked completely bald.

"President Johnson is very sensitive to lighting and things around him. They have tried all kinds of lighting approaches in the White House. One of the big problems is that no one can take five minutes of the President's time to explain lighting problems to him. If he comes in and says a light is too bright, they panic and get rid of it. No one wants to bother the President, but I'm sure he would be happy to listen for five minutes, if someone explained the situation and problems to him."

Florentino is a TV lighting pioneer who handles lighting for over 100 commercial accounts, closed circuit telecasts of championship fights, conventions and TV specials starring personalities like Barbra Streisand, Maurice Chevalier and the Beatles, in addition to political candidates.

"Candidates in the past have always chosen not to publicize the fact they were being lit. But lately they don't mind revealing it. Just as they have writers and advertising men and campaign managers, now they also have lighting men and make-up men. Originally they feared voters would think they were giving an unreal impression. They aren't. We cannot make a man become beautiful. We don't engage in fraud."

Ask Fiorentino how he handles a difficult politician and he says "With kindness, understanding, liquor and sunglasses." He laughs, then says, "No. We handle them with extreme care. With a man in public office, you can't be callow and say, 'That's it, buddy, and that's the way it stays.'"

The thief who mocked Christ on the cross was called Gestas.

AIR IN THE PIPES is easier said than done as actor Robert Morley found when he tried to play the bagpipes during a celebration in Dublin, Ireland. "Nothing to it," he said, until he took hold of the mouthpiece.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
These Witty Sayings
Have Teeth in Them
By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

Thornton Wilder didn't know, when he entitled his play "The Skin of Our Teeth," that teeth really do have skins! This skin, or you might say, enamel cuticle, is called Nasmyth's membrane. Don't look for it on your teeth because it's worn away shortly after teeth erupt.

The toothless old chocolate grandmother, "How old are you grandma?" She replied,
"I'm as old as my tongue and a little older than my teeth."

Someone said it's sheer folly to send an old man with false teeth to Vietnam peace talks when he may have to eat crow.

The toothless old chocolate
general said the draft law should have more teeth in it.

Do you know what makes witches mean, and why they have only one tooth? They've been cursed by the Druids with, "One tooth should be left you and that should hurt you all the rest of your life."

In Japan, women used to identify their marital status by blackening their teeth.
Maybe they were forced to do this by jealous husbands who believed that a wanton tooth is the harbinger of wantonness.

Just in case you wish to make your teeth black and shiny, the formula used was a mixture of urine, iron filings and saki, and it was so potent a stain that teeth stayed black forever.

Centuries ago, in England, deeds to property were apt to be sealed by teeth marks in wax followed by these words,
"In proof that this is sooth,
I bite the wax with my tooth."

Two Back Bay Boston
women, lean, yellow and long in the tooth, were sitting in their rockers talking about their dentist. One of them said, "Dr. — is a very clever dentist but he's getting too old and can't see."
The other proudly retorted,
"But if you show him where the cavity is, he'll fill it."

Even combs have teeth . . .
as do rakes and saws . . .

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

paragraph. What would you do as South?
If you have looked at all the cards you will have seen that East is not going to make his contract. You wouldn't actually double since you aren't supposed to have seen the cards but you would pass and let East struggle.

If you haven't looked at all the cards you should still pass. You told your story when you bid three diamonds.
Let your partner decide whether to pass or to take the save. He will have a tough problem but will probably pass on the theory that if East really thought he could make six spades East would not have jumped there but would have allowed himself to be pushed.

This last is academic. When this hand was played South went right to seven diamonds and paid off 900 points for going down five tricks doubled.

Sweep

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas completed a sweep of a four-game Texas League baseball series with Dallas-Fort Worth Thursday night behind the brilliant three-hit pitching of Phil Knuckles.

Knuckles had retired 16 batters in a row and given up only one hit with two out in the ninth. However, Glen Clark slapped a single to right and

Hal King homered to end

Knuckles' shutout bid.

Arkansas got two runs in each the second, fourth and sixth innings and had a solo tally in the first.

By THOMAS THOMAS
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The difference in carrying a .300 batting average for the National League All-Stars and a .195 average for the New York Mets is one year. Or so it seems to Jerry Grote.

The 25-year-old catcher from San Antonio, Tex., won a position on the NL starting lineup by receiving more votes than the Dodgers' Tom Haller, Cincinnati rookie John Bench, Atlanta's Joe Torre and the Cardinals' Tim McCarver, who finished second through fifth in that order in the balloting.

"Everybody kept saying I couldn't miss," was Grote's reaction. "But I wasn't that sure. There are too many good catchers in the league."

"This year I lowered my hands and shortened my swing at bat, and started hitting line drives again. Also, when I go out to call a game for our young pitchers now, I feel prepared and comfortable. There's no second-guessing."

Grote played a year at Trinity University before joining the Texas League in 1963. The next year he hit .181 in 100 games at Houston and spent the following season at Oklahoma City. A year later he went to the Mets.

The All-Star game was the farthest thing from Grote's mind last summer when he was having trouble just staying out of trouble. In Los Angeles one night, the Mets had used two catchers and Grote was the third and last to go into the game. In the seventh inning, he got into an argument with the umpire and was ejected. The Dodgers received the winning run when a rookie outfielder, who had been moved to catcher, allowed a passed ball.

Grote received a long distance call from the front office in New York and a $100 fine. Manager Wes Westrum also had a few words for Grote's poor performances—both at the plate and behind it. It was that kind of year for Jerry Grote.

This year didn't look promising either. Gil Hodges had succeeded Westrum as manager. When the season opened, J. C. Martin was the regular catcher.

Jerry Grote was the backup man in the bullpen.

But Martin suffered a broken finger in the first game and Grote came on, not only to lead the Mets in hitting, but also to establish himself as the NL's hardest catcher to steal on. His offensive and defensive accomplishments have helped keep the Mets near the .500 mark during the first half of the season.

Frank Howard, Washington's big swinger, heads the American League cast, which includes Harmon Killebrew and Rod Carew of Minnesota, Baltimore's Brooks Robinson, Jim Fregosi of the Angels, and last year's MVP winner, Carl Yastrzemski of the Red Sox. League-leading Detroit placed two players, Willie Horton and Bill Freehan.

Robinson will make his ninth consecutive appearance for the AL. Freehan, who led in the balloting, will probably be catching his teammate, Denny McLain, plus Sam McDowell and Luis Tiant of the Indians, and Tommy John of the White Sox.

Joining Jerry Grote on the NY squad are Willie McCovey (Giants), Curt Flood (Cards), Hank Aaron (Braves), Pete Rose (the top vote-getter) and Tommy Helms of the Reds and Ron Santo and Don Kessinger of the Cubs. Pitchers expected to see action are Juan Marichal, Jerry Koosman, Bob Gibson and Don Drysdale. The National League is seeking its sixth straight victory.

Kessinger the shortstop, like Grote the catcher, will be making his initial All-Star appearance. Hank Aaron, selected for the 14th time, said it was the biggest surprise of his life.

"I didn't think I had a chance," he said. "Boy, they must have voted the first day of the season."

Jerry Grote can assure him they didn't.

All-Star Game History— A Galaxy of Thrills

The spectacular fielding of Baltimore's Brooks Robinson (above) has placed the Orioles' star on the American League team for the ninth consecutive year. Cincinnati's Pete Rose (right) was the National League's top vote-getter in the All-Star balloting.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Major League All-Star games, since their inception in 1933, have provided some of the most interesting moments in sports history. Following, in capsule form, are some of them:

Comiskey Park, 1933—Babe Ruth, at 38 years old, did what everybody hoped he would do, hit a home run. It was a two-run shot which provided the victory margin in a 4-2 American League win.

Polo Grounds, 1934—Screwball pitcher (referring to his best pitch, not his idiosyncrasies) Carl Hubbell struck out five of the most fearsome hitters in the game, one after the other. He whiffed Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmie Foxx in the first inning. Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in the second. Bill Dickey then singled. Hubbell struck out Lefty Gomez to retire the side. The American League won 9-7.

Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, 1935—An All-Star game record attendance of 69,831 watched the A.L. win 4-1.

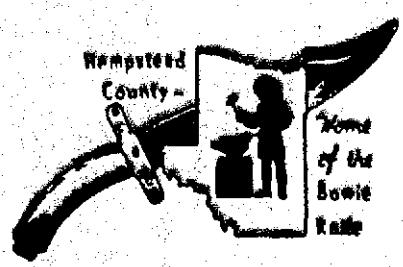

Griffith Stadium, 1937—President Franklin Roosevelt was in attendance when a line drive struck pitcher Dizzy Dean on the right foot, breaking his toe. It was the beginning of the end of Dean's great career. A.L. won 8-3.

Briggs Stadium, 1941—Ted Williams blasted a two-run, two-out homer in the ninth inning to give the American League a dramatic 7-5 comeback win. The A.L. scored a total of four runs in the bottom of the ninth.

Fenway Park, 1946—Williams, playing at home, cracked a pair

Crime Worries Business

Business and industrial leaders are far more concerned with crime, rioting and disorder for law and order than with any other single issue facing the nation, according to results of a survey just completed by the Southern States Industrial Council. The SSIC polled the executives of 2,500 small, medium and large companies—most of them in the 16 Southern states from Texas to Maryland, but with a substantial number in other sections—which make up its membership. The business executives were furnished a list of 22 national issues and asked to rate the issues in order of concern to them. Thirty-three percent of the members responded.

Crime and lawlessness were named by 46 per cent of the respondents as the issue of paramount concern to them. It received more than twice as many mentions as any other issue on the list. Tied for second place, with 20 per cent naming them as issues demanding priority attention, were "using all appropriate means to win the war in Vietnam" and stopping "war on poverty legislation and welfare spending by the federal government." In third place, also tied with 18 percent each, were the issues of "growth of big government" and "halting the Supreme Court's incursion into the legislative area."

Other issues and the percentages of those giving them highest rating included:

- Reform or elimination of the NLRA — 17 per cent
 - Putting unions under the anti-trust laws — 12 per cent
 - Controlling inflation — 8 per cent
 - Right to work — 8 per cent
 - External — Communist — menace — 7 per cent
 - Communist infiltration of the peace and racial movements — 6 per cent
 - Federal taxation — 5 per cent
- (Percentages add up to more than 100 because some respondents gave first priority to more than one issue.) - Bloxi-Gulfport (Miss.) Daily Herald

Spartans

We can remember when the definition of a successful Tulsa business executive was one who drove from his air-conditioned home in his air-conditioned car to his air-conditioned office — and at the end of the day went to his club to take a steam bath to work up a sweat.

These days, he goes for a cross-country run before breakfast instead. The president of the University of Tulsa and a group of more or less portly (in the portfolio sense) Tulsans were pictured in yesterday's Tulsa Tribune jogging across the golf course at dawn. Others are solemnly "running for their ass" in organized trots three or four times a week, in the conviction this will strengthen the heart muscles and stave off the diseases of old age. There is a large volume of medical experience to prove they may be right. The soft life is sending America to pot, people say. But for every action, there is a reaction — and this is the Spartan reaction to soft-living.

Unhappily, it is so far confined to Establishment-type people. We have yet to hear of any flower children or hippies who can see any sense in forsaking the pad for a brisk trot before breakfast. The Haight-Ashbury section of San Francisco does not echo to the pounding of running feet, unless perhaps The Law is in pursuit. The truth is that the jog before breakfast has become, to them, another of those hated status symbols. It's something that is done only by the successful. Ah temporal Ah mores! - Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

Protest Is Filed on Bar Incident

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The National Education Association has filed a protest with the State Department and has asked for a probe by the Justice Department because an African nation's official said he was refused service in a Dallas bar.

The incident took place near the Municipal Auditorium where about 8,000 NEA members are holding a national convention.

A guest of the convention, Mooki Vitus Molapo, first secretary of the Embassy of Lesotho, said he was refused service because he is black.

Molapo quoted a waitress in the place as saying, "Can't you see that you're black? We don't serve blacks in here."

Sam M. Lambert, NEA executive secretary, asked the State Department to make an official apology to Molapo's ambassador in Washington.

Dallas officials, to whom the NEA also complained, said they were investigating the incident.

An employee of the bar said it has always refused to serve Negroes on the premises.

The tavern's owner, I. M. Jolly, said his place does not serve food and he is required by law to serve beer to any customer only if it also sells food.

"I abide by the law," Jolly said. "I hope to continue the present policy, but if I have to, I'll serve them (Negroes)."

Storms Cause Some Flooding

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Water levels in some southeast Michigan lakes—swelled to the flood point by several days of severe thunderstorms—are so high that fast-moving boats are sending water across living room floors, says the Michigan Conservation Department.

James A. Hadley, head of the department's boat and water safety section, said the water may take three or four weeks to recede to normal levels. In the meantime, he said, it is illegal to operate a boat in such a manner as to damage property.

New Threat of Violence at Berkeley

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A permanent ban on regular traffic along a main street leading to the University of California was demanded today by young militants following a July Fourth "happening" allowed by the City Council.

A crowd estimated at nearly 5,000 milled back and forth Thursday along a two-block area of Telegraph Avenue, claimed by an activist coalition as "our street."

The spirit was one of a victory celebration. They had battled the City Council for a permit to close off the street and the council relented after first denying that and other demands.

Old Washington Big Tourist Attraction This Time of Year

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Historic Washington, Ark., like our nation's capital, is visited by many at this season of the year. Perhaps the largest group of tourists is attracted there for the 4th of July celebration, such as the one Thursday.

Points of interest in the Old Town of Washington have been pointed out before, but with the help of a research paper prepared by Mary Margaret Haynes while a student at Ouachita College, we would like to look at some "firsts" of which Washington, Ark., is proud.

Elijah Stuart was the first man to settle in Washington. But he first lived a little north of the town and afterward moved over and built a log house on a site which now lies in the eastern part of the town. Here he opened the first tavern in Washington. Though the temporary seat of justice was, for some time, at his house, the first terms of the courts in Hempstead County were held in the home of John English. In 1823 Washington was selected by a commission as the permanent seat of justice for the county, and the next year the county seat was once more established at Elijah Stuart's house. James Moss was the first man to occupy the bench as county judge.

In 1826 John Johnson opened the first store in the town. Ab-salom Maden was the next merchant, and about 1827 Abraham Block opened a store. As for business establishments, nothing could have been more popular than the Washington Tavern or Travelers' Inn. It was here that Sam Houston made plans for freeing Texas from Mexico, and the town people gathered to smoke

Surgery Aids Boy Bitten by Dog

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two years and 270 surgical stitches after 9-year-old Billy Hines rescued a playmate from a snarling dog, smiles have returned to the lad's face.

Plastic surgery has erased nearly all signs of the mauling inflicted by Rex, a husky German shepherd, when Billy, then 7, stepped between it and Robbie Ellenberger, then 2.

"For two years he couldn't smile," said Billy's mother, Mrs. William Hines. "He was self-conscious. They called him Scarface."

"That dog was going to hurt Robbie," Billy said.

He recalled that he had pulled Robbie in a little red wagon, accompanied by their parents, to a neighborhood store, when Rex lunged at Robbie. He said he jumped in and pushed Robbie away.

"The dog scratched my elbow and it hurt," Billy said. "Then he bit my face but I didn't feel that so much."

Robbie was unharmed. Billy will have to go to the hospital periodically until his surgery is completed. That will be when he's 18.

their pipes, get letters from the "folks back East," and glean the latest news from the outside world. You see, the Tavern was also a stagecoach station.

The only newspaper in the state of Arkansas to go through the Civil War without missing an issue was the Washington Telegraph, published by William Etter, a brilliant journalist from Pittsburgh, Pa., who came down the Ohio, Mississippi, and Red rivers to Fulton with a meager printing press. It was hauled by a wagon to the county seat of Washington, and there in November 1839 the first issue of the Washington Telegraph was printed in the old tavern. Publisher Etter printed his paper for many years, but when the Civil War broke over the country, he leased it to John R. Eakin while he served the army of the Confederate States. (Eakin used his head, and anything available became the Washington Telegraph, when newsprint could not be obtained. Example? Imported wallpaper from parlor walls. Well, the back side of wallpaper is plain, so the newspaper was printed on it.) A few years ago William H. Etter, a descendant of the original publisher, still issued the Washington Telegraph, the second oldest paper published in Arkansas and the oldest weekly newspaper west of the Mississippi River. However, today it is no longer published.

Another outstanding writer associated with Washington was General Albert Pike, knows and revered by members of the Masonic Lodge everywhere. When he resigned from the army, he came to Washington and took refuge in the home of his good friend and brother Mason, Colonel Etter. He brought with him his Masonic library, and there he translated from foreign languages, compiled and wrote his masterpiece of Masonic literature.

The first Methodist conference in Arkansas was held at the Washington Methodist Church in 1822, but a small settlement within a mile of Washington had the first Methodist "meeting house" in Arkansas. They called it "Henry's Chapel" in honor of John Henry, who preached the first Methodist sermon in Arkansas.

Did you know that the first Negro school in the state was organized in the Baptist Church in Washington? According to the story, a northern demagogue organized the school, but the young Negroes were so adverse to being taught by a "yankee" that they had to be run down by a man on horseback and forcibly led into the building.

James Black and his famous Bowie knife are a story in themselves, which we will deal with at another time. A trip to Washington is interesting to anyone who likes historic nostalgia with a southern flavor.

Warren May Stay On If Bloc Holds

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren says he will stay on as chief justice of the United States if the Senate does not confirm Abe Fortas as his successor.

But, Warren told a news conference Friday, he expects Fortas to be approved despite the declared opposition of 19 Republican senators and he believes Fortas will be "a great chief justice."

"I am obliged to (stay on)," Warren said. "I suppose that under the oath I am obliged to perform the duties of my office. I neither expect nor hope that would be a fact."

Michigan's Robert P. Griffin, leader of the Republican opposition bloc, declined comment on Warren's declaration. There was no immediate reaction from the others, scattered across the country for the long July 4th weekend.

But the Republicans, who claim unnamed supporters among Southern Democrats, say their campaign is based on principle more than personalities.

They have accused President Johnson of "cronyism" in naming Fortas as chief justice and long-time Texas friend Homer Thornberry as an associate justice. They are mainly opposed, however, to what they call a "lame duck" president making court appointments.

They said they would press ahead with their campaign even when Democratic Senate Leader Mike Mansfield declared last week that he expected Warren to stay on if he had to and in effect gave his colleagues a choice between Warren and Fortas.

Mansfield's comments were viewed by some of the Republicans as an effort to weaken any Southern Democratic support. The Southerners have been loudly critical of the court under Warren and presumably would find little difference between Warren and Fortas who often have voted together.

Speaking Thursday to some 300 delegates to the American Communist party convention, Hall denounced the new left for "petty bourgeois radicalism."

The delegates are meeting to pick the first Communist presidential ticket since 1940, when Earl Browder was the party's candidate.

The general secretary spoke for 105 minutes. The speech was closed to newsmen, but excerpts were handed out later.

Hall said the country is being engulfed by a new wave represented by the "grass roots electoral revolt." He claimed the revolt had "swept Johnson out of the presidential race."

In a news conference before his speech, Hall said there are Communists on most of the major campuses in this country and that they had been involved in the student protests.

The party's youth leader, Michael Zagarell, claimed the movement had played a leading role in student rebellions and anti-draft demonstrations across the country this past year. In a statement before the closed session of the convention, Zagarell said that during "stop the draft week" in New York last December, 60 of the 300 marshals in the protest were Communist party members.

The 23-year-old national secretary of youth affairs said a number of individual Communists had participated in the massive demonstrations at Columbia University this spring, but he said the Communists had little to do with organizing the protests.

Zagarell said the party planned to focus on young industrial workers in the future and would receive less attention on campuses.

Harding Job Contracted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded Harding College a $46,440 grant for continuation of research on physical fitness for astronauts.

The grant continues the program, which began May 1, 1967, until April 30, 1969.

Three of five phases of the study have been completed and a fourth phase is to begin in September. Twenty Harding students are being used in each phase as subjects.

Australian Stops Police With Gun

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A gunman who has held out for three days against a police siege and even got authorities to help marry him to his hostage, an 18-year-old girl, now has a high-powered rifle given to him by the police commissioner.

Commissioner Norman T. Allan said today he was forced into the action when Wally Mellish, 23, pointed a shotgun and pistol at his new bride and demanded the rifle.

"I had to make an agonizing decision," Allan said. "To refuse meant death for her and the baby."

Mellish is holding both his wife, the former Beryl Muddle, and her 10-week-old son as hostages.

Allan and the Rev. Clyde Paton, an Anglican priest, entered the suburban Sydney house where Mellish is holding out to reason with him Thursday.

Mellish had broken his promise to surrender if he was allowed to marry Miss Muddle, whom he seized at gunpoint Tuesday.

The Rev. Mr. Paton performed the ceremony Wednesday and Allan, who was unarmed, was a witness.

Allan said today that in addition to the high-powered Armalite rifle and 200 rounds of ammunition for it, Mellish has a shotgun, a .303 rifle and a pistol. Mellish's wife said he also has a box of grenades.

"My only concern is for the lives of that girl and her baby," Allan said. "I'll do anything to grant any request to protect them. I have the responsibility of seeing that the baby and the mother are not killed through any action of mine . . ."

"If we have to wait seven days we will wait. We cannot use tear gas. How would an 18-year-old girl and a baby stand up to high density tear gas?"

The house still was surrounded by police today.

Rodeo Arena Witnesses a Wedding

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP) — The rodeo arena at Springdale was put to full usage Thursday night, featuring the final day of the 24th annual Rodeo of the Ozarks, the crowning of a rodeo queen and, yes, even a wedding.

Joined in matrimony were a California cowboy with 14 years on the rodeo circuit and his No. 1 fan, a 24-year-old department store clerk from Cleveland, Ohio.

Except for the outdoor setting amid rollicking cowboys waiting for a shot at more than $11,000 in prize money, the wedding was a typical one — the traditional wedding march was played, the father gave away the bride.

A midnight reception was held for the newly weds, Louis Espinosa, a bareback bronco and bull rider from Long Pine, Calif., and his bride, Mary Ellen Schanz of Cleveland.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Raymond Reed, president of the Springdale Ministerial Alliance and pastor of the Caudle Ave. Baptist Church.

Following the wedding, Ginger Harris, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Harris of Fayetteville was crowned queen of the rodeo. The runner-up was Patsy Beth Castor, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Castor of Rogers.

In the rodeo competition itself, Ron Coaster of Iowa Park, Tex., was named the best all-around cowboy.

Cong Kills 2 Members of Jazz Band

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas ambushed four young American jazz musicians and an Army sergeant escort driving near Saigon today on an isolated road.

Two teen-age members of the group—Brandt Perry and the Bubble Machine—were killed when they tried surrendering with their hands in the air. Two others, including 20-year-old singer Paula Levine of North Hollywood, Calif., and a U.S. soldier were wounded.

"I played dead and that's the only reason I'm alive today," the attractive dark-haired Miss Levine said at the U.S. Army's 93rd Evacuation Hospital where she was treated for fragment wounds in the back and legs.

The others wounded were Jack Bone, 18, of Los Angeles, and a 21-year-old soldier escorting the group, who was in serious condition.

Identities of the dead were withheld until their families could be notified.

The musical group had started out late in the day for the Vietnamese coastal resort of Vung Tau, about 45 miles southeast of Saigon, to play for American troops. Halfway to their destination, they were stopped by South Vietnamese militia guards who advised them to turn back.

A few miles along on their return trip, they ran into the ambush. Miss Levine said she crouched on the floor while the men got out, first thinking they were being fired on mistakenly by friendly troops. As they raised their arms in the air, the raised their arms in the air, the Viet Cong opened up again.

On the northeast frontier, U.S. Marines charging through heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire killed 78 North Vietnamese troops in a day-long battle Friday, the U.S. Command reported. Four Marines were killed and 42 wounded.

The Marines were sweeping coastal marshlands when they came under enemy fire. American artillery, tanks and dive-bombers joined the counterattack. The North Vietnamese pulled out at dark.

In other fighting in the northern war zone, U.S. troops reported killing 68 enemy soldiers. Three Americans were killed and 22 wounded, U.S. spokesmen said.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong unfurled three National Liberation Front flags, including one just a block from U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker's residence. Two other flags, booby trapped with grenades, were attached to trees in another district. Police said they captured two Viet Cong suspects.

Authorities said the flag incidents were probably intended to taunt the Saigon government by showing the presence of the enemy inside the capital city.

For weeks, Saigon has girded for a third major offensive by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. The attack had been expected late last month or this week, but new intelligence information reaching here Saturday indicated the attack may come before July 20 and possibly on July 15.

"There is going to be an attack before July 20th," the 14th anniversary of the signing of the Geneva accords which divided Vietnam, one source said. He said some informants had pinpointed the target date to July 15.

The enemy may be holding back now, military sources said, because of the recent discovery of large caches of enemy weapons and supplies outside Saigon.

U.S. infantrymen have found 55 Red Chinese-made 107mm rocket weighing about 50 pounds—each with a range of five miles—since Thursday in deep tunnels 30 miles northwest of Saigon. Other large weapons caches have been dug up elsewhere in recent days.

Though the timing of the expected enemy invasion remained a matter of speculation, most U.S. officers expressed certainty that the attack would come.

Saigon itself was quiet today. There have been no rocket attacks on the capital since June 21.
